According to [redacted], [redacted] the Soviet intelligence training school at Port Arthur is organized into five sections or departments as follows:

25X1A2d1

25X1X6

1. Tutor Department - This department handles the indoctrination of new students to the proper Communist party line.

2. Registration Department - This section handles the registration of all new members of the school and also acts as an administration section for the school. This section is also supposed to take care of the administration of native Communists who desire to be sent to Russia for education.

3. Military Department - (Probably security section) - This department handles the investigation of all anti-Soviet and anti-Communist elements among applicants or prospective students at this school. This section is also reported to handle the elimination of reactionary elements found within the student body.

4. Publicity Department - (Propaganda section) - This department handles both Soviet propaganda in the school and assists in the training of propaganda agents and the publicizing of pro-Soviet and anti-American feelings in the local area.

5. Executive Department - (CE section) - This section besides specifically training CE agents, also engages in the investigation of graduate agents who have been sent on missions and who have been captured or for some other reason have not returned.
